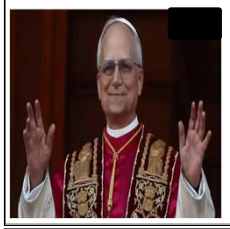
The Deep End: like a Shepherd
Triona Doherty
My grandfather was a farmer in Malin Head in Co Donegal. As a child I used to love to watch him round up the sheep in the evenings, using a variety of whistling techniques to guide his sheepdog, Jack, to steer the flock safely into the pen for the night. It was always a smooth transition, at a quiet time of the evening, with dog and flock well versed in the ins and outs of the process.
It is this experience that I recall when I hear this parable. And it was the local shepherding practices of the time that Jesus turned to in an attempt to explain who he is.
The shepherd in Jesus' parable calls his sheep one by one to lead them into the safety of the sheepfold, as was the practice in Palestine at the time, and the sheep follow their shepherd because they know his voice. Since the Pharisees, to whom Jesus is speaking, don't get it, he explains the parable; he is the gate of the sheepfold, and anyone who enters through him will be safe and will be sure of finding pasture.
Sheep and shepherd imagery is common in both the Old and New Testament, and today's psalm is probably the most recognisable passage. 'The Lord is my shepherd….fresh and green are the pastures where he gives me repose. Near restful waters he leads me to revive my drooping spirit.'
A common practice and popular image provide the perfect springboard for an examination of who Jesus is and what he offers to those who follow him: safety, pasture and life.

21st Century Priest – Profile One who believes that God is achieving great things in and through this generation; one who believes that the Eucharist is the cornerstone of life; one whose hope is founded on the living faith, shared and nurtured in a praying community; one who will risk going the extra mile for Christ; one who will risk surrendering personal freedom for security in the Lord; one who will risk undertaking t he most menial jobs for love of others; one who will risk being exploited for the sake of the gospel.



Such a one will be a person of hopeful joy rather than cynical despair; a person of generous risk rather than of comfortable cuteness. Only God's grace could inspire such living. It is open to each of us to create an atmosphere where such a call can take root.

We welcome into our Faith Community, Through the Sacrament of Baptism: Kaiden Long, Glentogher a son for Robert and Keisha; also, Erin Collins, Johnstown, Navan, a daughter for Martin and Jennifer, also, William James McConalogue; Matthew Joseph, McConnalogue, and Ronnie Hugh McConalogue, sons for William and Tracey.
